

BECKETT SCHOLAR GROUP WEEKEND
25/26 June 2005

The Beckett Scholar Group met in Buckinghamshire for their annual Weekend held this year on 24-26 June. It was hosted by James and Anna King and the programme included visits to a mix of enterprises with an agricultural connection including intensive broiler production, an insight into the competitive world of international tractor pulling, how to get the best out of planners and James own wheelie bin cleaning operation. The Group was inspired by the golden privilege of Oxford and took a quick tour of Nuffield College itself but had to accept that a Scholarship is no guarantee of competence with a punt pole.
